

- Adilshahi of Bijapur (1490-1686) founded by Yusuf Adil Shah. Greatest ruler of the kingdom was Ibrahim Adil Shah. He introduced 'Dakhini' in place of Persian language. Another ruler Mohammed Adil Shah built the Gol Gumbaz. It was annexed by Aurangzeb.
- Imad Shahis of Berar (1490-1574) founded by Fateullah Khan II Mad-ul-Mulk with Daulatabad as capital. Later, it was conquered and annexed by one of the Nizam Shahi rulers of Ahmednagar.
- Qutub Shahis of Golconda (1518-1687) founded by Quli Qutub Shah. He built the famous Golconda fort and made it his capital.
Mohammed Quli Qutub Shah was the greatest of all. He founded the city of Hyderabad. He built the famous Charminar. Most important port of Qutub Shahi kingdom was Masulipatnam. The kingdom was annexed by Aurangzeb (1687).
- Barid Shahis of Bidar (1528-1619) founded by Ali Barid. Annexed by Adil Shahis of Bijapur.

RELIGIOUS MOVEMENTS

The Sufis

- Sufism is a mystical Islamic belief and practice in which Muslim seeks the truth of divine love and knowledge through direct personal experience of God. Sufis are against the orthodoxy and fanaticism of religion.
- In India, Sufism appealed not only to Muslims but also to Hindus and these sufi saints became venerated figure for all.
- In Islam visiting pilgrimage site associated with Muhammad or other venerated figure such as sufi saints etc is called Ziyarat. The abode of sufi was called Khanqah.
- During 13th century, the Sufism was divided into 14 silsilas. Sufis had many branches in India.

The Chistis

Founder was Khwaza Abu-e-Chisti, but in India Moin-ud-din Chisti popularised it. His tomb is situated at Ajmer in Rajasthan.

- Main disciple of Moin-ud-din was Khwaza Qutub-ud-din Bakhtiyar Kaki (after him Qutub Minar was named).
- Famous saint Nizam-ud-din Auliya saw the reign of seven Delhi Sultans. He was also known as Mahboob-i-Ilahi (beloved of God) and Sultan-ul-Auliya (king of the saints). His tomb is situated in Delhi.
- Sheikh Nasir-ud-din (Chirag-i-Delhi) was also a disciple of Mahboob-i-Ilahi. Amir Khusrau and Al-Biruni were also follower of Chisti.

Qadiri

- Founder was Sheikh Mohi-ud-din Qadir Zilani in India. It was popularised by Shah Nizamat Ullah, Makhdum Zilani Dara Shikoh (son of Shah Jahan) was the disciple of Mullah Shah Badakshi.
- He (Dara) wrote the Safinat-ul-Auliya, Sakinat-ul-Auliya. These are the biographies of the saints. Dara Shikoh also translated some books as Sir-e-Akbar, Sir-e-Asrar.

Naqshabandi

- Founder father Khwaza Baha-ud-din Naqshabandi in India. It was popularised by Khwaza Khwand Mahmud (his centre was in Kashmir).
- Other saints Baqi-Billah, Shahwali ullah, Khwaza Mir Dard Naqshaband. Mir Dard wrote the Dard-e-Dil, the Sham-e-Mahfil, the Ilm-ul-Khitab.
- Other famous silsilah were Firdausi, Quadiri, Satari etc.

Bhakti Movement

- Bhakti is a devotional worship of God with the ultimate objective of attaining Moksha or Salvation.
- Initially, Bhakti Movement started in South India in the form of alvar and nayanar. Gradually Bhakti Movement spread to North. In North India, Bhakti Movement started to flourish in 13th century.
- Bhakti saint were against the casteism, ritualism, religious sacrifices. Bhakti saints professed equal participation of women in religious practices. These saints used the local dialect to promote their ideas and communicate with masses.

Bhakti Movement is divided into two branches

- Nirguna
- Saguna

Nirguna Saints

Guru Nanak He was born at Talwandi in Lahore. He propagated Monotheism, Hindu-Muslim unity and denounced Idol worship. His disciple Mardana played Rabas. He established Sikh religion. His teachings are found in Guru Granth Sahib.

Dadu Dayal He was born in Ahmedabad to Muslim parents, bought up by a Hindu. His teachings are collected in a book called Bani. His disciples were Sundaradasa, Rajjab, Bakham and Warid. He founded Brahma sect or Param Brahma Sampradaya.

Kabir He was opposed to caste, creed, idol worship and propagated Hindu-Muslim unity. His works are Sabada Doha, Holi, Rekhtal etc. Verses of Kabir Namdev, Ravidas, Dhanna, Pipa etc were included in Adi Granth.

Saguna Saints

Tulsidas Contemporary to Akbar. Works- Ramcharitamanas, Kavitaawali, Gitawali, Parvati Mangal, Janki Mangal, Vinay Patrika etc.

Ramananda Propagated Bhakti in North India. Organised a group of cadres called Bairagi.

Surdas He was disciple of Vallabhacharya. He was a blind poet from Agra. He sang the glory of Krishna in his Sursagar.

Gorakhnath Founder of Nath Hindu monastic movement in India. His followers are mostly found in Himalayan states. Followers are called yogis.

Mirabai Rathor princess of Merta and daughter-in-law of Rana Sanga of Mewar (husband-Bhoja Raja). She wrote the verse Padavali. She believed in Krishna.

Chaitanya He was known as Gaudiya Mahaprabhu. He was founder of Gaurang or Bengal Vaishnavism. His teacher was Ishwapuri.

Shankara Deva He established EK Sharan Sampradaya or Mahapurushiya Sampradaya. He divided universe into two parts Aswatantra and Swatantra.

Chaitanya Mahaprabhu He was also a great saint. There had been Vaishnavism in Bengal long before his birth, but Chaitanya accepted that Krishna alone is the most perfect God. 'Kirtan' system was given by Chaitanya.

Bhakti Saints of Maharashtra

Namdev By profession he was a tailor. Earlier he believed in Saguna stream, but later on diverted towards Nirguna branch. He was poet saint of Maharashtra. Earlier he was influenced by Vaishnavism. He worshipped Vithoba. He formed a varkari sect of Hinduism.

Tukaram Tukaram was contemporary of Shivaji. He was part of varkari devotionism tradition, he is also known for Abhanga devotional poetry. His poetry was devoted to vithoba (avatar of Vishnu).

Ramdas A noted spiritual poet of Maharashtra. He is famous for his Advaita vedantist text and Dashbodh. He was spiritual guru of Shivaji.

Eknath He was famous religious Marathi poet of Varkari Sampradaya. He wrote Bhavarth Ramayan and a variant of Bhagvata Purana.

Taneshwara He was 13th century Marathi saint, poet, philosopher and yogi. He wrote Dnyaneshwari (commentary on Gita) and Amrutobhava. His works are considered gem of Marathi language.

Important Philosopher and Bhakti Saints

Shankaracharya He was born at Kalodi, Kerala. He taught concepts of Maya (illusion), Advaita and importance of Vedanta. He established four Mathas at Badrinath, Puri, Sringeri and Dwarka. He wrote commentaries on Upanishads, Bhagwad Gita and Brahmasutras of Badrayana. He is also known as Pseudo-Buddhist as many of his doctrines were similar to that of Buddhist doctrines.

Abhinava Gupta He was a philosopher, mystic and aesthetician from Kashmir. His most famous work is Tantraloka, a treatise on all philosophical and practical aspects of Kashmir Shaivism.

Ramanuja Acharya He was Tamil Vaishnavite saint. He gave philosophy of Visist-advait. Wrote Vedanta Samgraha, commentaries on Brahmasutras and Bhagwad Gita.

Madhavacharya He was Kannada Vaishnavite saint. He gave philosophy of Dvaita.

Nimbarka Telugu Vaishnavite saint, contemporary of Ramayana. Concept of Dvaitadvaita was promoted by him.

Vallabhacharya He was a Telugu Vaishnavite saint. He was born at Varanasi in 1479 and went to Vrindavan, where he resided permanently. He established the philosophy of Shuddhadvaita. Vallabhacharya's teachings are also known as Pushtimarga. He was the contemporary of Vijayanagara King Krishna Deva Raya.

Raghunandan He belonged to Nabadwip (Nadia) in Bengal. He was considered to be the most influential writer in the Dharamashastras.

The Sikh Gurus and Their Contribution

Guru Nanak (1469-1539)	First Guru of Sikhs, Founder of Sikhism.
Guru Angad (1504-1552)	Compiled the biography of Guru Nanak Dev, known as Janam Sakhi introduced Gurmukhi Script ; 63 hymns of Guru Angad Dev included in Guru Granth Sahib.
Guru Amar Das (1479-1574)	He promoted inter-caste dining at his kitchen. Akbar granted villages to finance the scheme, out of which grew Amritsar.
Guru Ram Das (1534-1581)	Son-in-law of Guru Amar Das.
Guru Arjun Dev (1563-1606)	Son of Guru Ram Das died after torture in Mughal (Jahangir) detention for sheltering rebellious Mughal prince Khusrav.
Guru Hargobind (1595-1644)	Son of Guru Arjun Dev, put on two words—one signifying Miri (secular power) and other Piri (spiritual power), Built the Akal Takht in 1608.
Guru Har Rai (1630-1661)	Son of Guru Hargobind supported Dara's claim in the wars of succession between Shah Jahan's sons.
Guru Harikishan (1656-1664)	Son of Guru Har Rai, Gurudwara Bangla Sahib in New Delhi, was constructed in his memory.
Guru Tegh Bahadur (1621-1675)	Son of Guru Hargobind, Gurudwara Rakab Ganj Sahib in New Delhi, is where Guru's body was cremated. He was executed on Mughal orders.
Guru Govind Singh (1666-1700)	Son of Guru Tegh Bahadur, tenth and the last sikh guru. Guru Granth Sahib was finally completed.

THE MUGHAL EMPIRE

Babur

- The Mughal empire was founded by Zahir-ud-din Muhammad Babur. He was a Turk. In 1523, the invitation came from Daulat Khan Lodhi, the Governor of Punjab and Alam Khan, uncle of Sultan Ibrahim Lodhi of Delhi to invade India.
- He defeated Ibrahim Lodhi in the first Battle of Panipat in 1526. Babur possessed a large part of artillery, a new kind of weapon coming into use in Europe and Turkey. Babur introduced gunpowder and artillery in war in India.
- Defeated the Rana Sangram Singh of Mewar in the decisive Battle of Khanwa which took place on 16th March, 1527 at Khanwa. Defeated Rajput Chief Medini Rai in the Battle of Chanderi in 1528. Defeated the Afghan Chief under Mahmud Lodhi in the Battle of Ghaghra in Bihar in 1529. Tomb of Babur is situated in Kabul.

Humayun

- Babur's eldest son Humayun divided the empire inherited from his father among his three brothers Kamran, Hindal and Askari.
- Humayun built the Dinpanah at Delhi as his second capital. He was attacked by Sher Shah at Chausa (Battle of Chausa) in 1539 and was defeated badly. In Battle of Kannauj (1540) he was defeated again by Sher Shah Suri.
- After wandering for 15 years and after the death of Sher Shah, Humayun regained his lost kingdom in 1555, defeating Sikander Shah with the help of Bairam Khan.
- Humayun died in 1556, after an accidental fall from the stairs of his library building (Sher Mandal, Delhi).
- Humayunnama* is the account of Humayun's life written by Gulbadan Begum (his half-sister).

Akbar

- Akbar (AD 1556-1605) was undoubtedly the brightest star of the Mughal empire. Jalal-ud-din Mohammed Akbar was born in 1542 at Amarkot when his father Humayun and mother Hamida Banu were struggling.
- At the time of his father's death Akbar was merely 13 years old and was in the guardianship of Bairam Khan, who on hearing of Humayun's death coronated Akbar at Kalanaur.
- In November 1556, the Mughal army under Bairam Khan moved towards Delhi and defeated Hemu in the Second Battle of Panipat.

- Akbar then consolidated his empire through a series of conquests, the most difficult and most memorable being the campaign against Rana Pratap of Chittor, whom he defeated in the famous Battle of Haldighati in 1576.
- Akbar introduced Mansabdari system, it means rank or position. So rank of government official was determined.
- He abolished the pilgrim tax. In 1564, he abolished Jaziya. Land revenue system during Akbar's Rule was known as Zabti. Todar Mal was the incharge of Revenue System.
- Akbar formulated an order known as Din-i-Ilahi (Divine Monotheism) in 1582. Birbal, Abul Fazal and Faizi joined the order. Akbar issued the 'Decree of Infallibility' in 1579. Abul Fazal wrote the Ain-i-Akbari.
- Navratna of his court were Birbal, Todar Mal, Abul Fazal, Tansen, Abdur Rahim Khan-i-Khana, Mullado Pyaja, Hakim Hukkam, Faizi, Maan Singh.
- Chand Bibi revolted during the reign of Akbar. Akbar built Buland Darwaza in 1601 AD in Fatehpur Sikri to communicate his victory over Gujarat. He also built Ibadat Khana.
- Father Monserrate wrote a commentary on his journey to the court of Akbar. He wrote about personality of Akbar, lavishness, customs, rituals of the palace. He also wrote about revenue and justice systems.

Year	Territory	Specific
1561	Malwa	The ruler of Malwa was Baz Bahadur.
1564	Garhkatanga (a kingdom in Gondwana)	Rani Durgawati and her minor son, Bir Narayan, died fighting Mughals. The Mughal army was led by Asaf Khan.
1567	Chittor	The storming of the fortress of Chittor was one of the most famous military feats of Akbar. Rana Udai Singh was its ruler.
1572-73	Gujarat	Akbar built the famous Buland Darwaza at Fatehpur Sikri in commemoration of this victory.
1574-76	Bihar and Bengal	Akbar personally marched against Bihar and drove out Daud from Patna and Hajipur.
1576	Battle of Haldighati	Rana Pratap, the son of Udai Singh of Mewar, was severely defeated by the Mughal army under Maan Singh and Asaf Khan.
1581	Kabul	Mirza Hakim was defeated.
1586	Kashmir and Baluchistan
1591	Sindh
1592	Orissa	The Mughal army was led by Maan Singh.
1595	Qandhar	The Mughal army in this battle was commanded by Abdur Rahim Khan-i-Khanan.
1601	Asirgarh	The capture of Asirgarh marked the climax of Akbar's career of conquest.

Jahangir

- Akbar's eldest son Salim assumed the title 'Nur-ud-din Mohammed Jahangir' and ascended the throne. He mostly lived in Lahore, which he adorned with gardens and buildings. A few months after his accession, his eldest son Khusrav revolted against him.
- Jahangir's first political success was against the Mewar Rana Amar Singh (1615). In 1620, Prince Khurram conquered Kangra. Jahangir followed the policy of his father with regard to the Deccan.
- In 1617, Ahmednagar fell and Khurram was rewarded with the title 'Shah-Jahan'. Jahangir married Mehr-un-nisa, whom he gave the title 'Nur-Jahan'.
- Nur-Jahan was a politically shrewd and ambitious woman who dominated the royal household especially when Jahangir fell ill. She had great influence on Jahangir's life as she had the status of Pad Shah Begum, coins were struck in her name and on all farmans her name was attached to the imperial signature.
- Nur Jahan's influence secured high positions for her father I'timad-ud-Daulah and for her brother Asaf Khan. She married Asaf's daughter Mumtaz Mahal to Khurram.
- Problem arose, when Nur Jahan married her daughter Sher Afghani to Jahangir's youngest son, Shahryar. Now, Nur Jahan supported him for the heir-apparent.
- The Mughal court was divided into Pro-Nur Jahan and Anti-Nur Jahan. These events hampered the military operation for the recovery of Kandahar.
- Captain Hawkins (1608-11) and Sir Thomas Roe (1615-19) visited his court to gain favourable concessions for English trade with India. As a result of the efforts of Thomas Roe, English factories were established at Surat, Agra, Ahmedabad and Broach.

Shah Jahan

- Shah Jahan, the third son of Jahangir, ascended the throne in AD 1628 and married Mumtaz in 1612.
- He was an able general and administrator. In the first year of his reign Shah Jahan had to overcome the revolts of the Bundela chief, Juzhar Singh and the Afghan noble named Khan Jahan Lodhi an ex-viceroy of the Deccan.
- Shah Jahan's reign of 30 years is regarded as the Golden age of Mughal in art and architecture during which monument like the famous Taj Mahal at Agra in the memory of his wife Mumtaz, the Red fort at Delhi with its Diwan-i-Khas and Diwan-i-Aam, the Jama Masjid and the famous Jewel-studded peacock throne were built among other numerous pieces of architecture.
- At the time of Shah Jahan's sickness in 1657 his eldest son was in Agra, Shuja was Governor in Bengal, Aurangzeb was viceroy in the Deccan and the youngest Murad was Governor in Gujarat.
- Aurangzeb took control of the fort and crowned himself at Delhi, after defeating his brothers. Shah Jahan was kept in strict confinement at Agra fort till his death in 1666.

- Many foreign travellers visited India during the reign of Shah Jahan. Two Frenchman Bernier and Travenier and an Italian adventurer Manucci, the author of the Storio Dor Magor are specially noteworthy.

Aurangzeb

- Aurangzeb ascended the throne with the title of Alamgir (conqueror of the world) and ruled for almost 50 years.
- During his reign the Mughal empire reached territorial climax. He first defeated the Imperial army at Dharmatt and then defeated a force led by Dara in the Battle of Samugarh.
- He ordered the arrest and later executed the ninth Sikh Guru, Guru Teg Bahadur. He discontinued the practice of inscribing the Kalima on the coins and abolished the celebration of the new year's day (Nauroz). He was constantly involved in trying to curtail the rising maratha power, however he failed to subdue them.
- Aurangzeb's reign was marked by growing agrarian crisis and popular rebellions, such as those of the Jats, the Satnamis, the Sikhs and the Rajputs (when Jodhpur was annexed).
- His religious policies were great setback to the standards of tolerance and liberalism set by his predecessors. Mulhitasib (regulator of moral conduct) was appointed in the reign. Aurangzeb was called a Darvesh or Zinda Pir. He also forbade Sati. He patronised the greatest digest of Muslim law in Indian Fatawa-i-Alamgiri. He was a diplomat and capable general.
- He imposed Jaziya on the Hindus in 1679. He banned music and dancing. He died in 1707 in the Deccan.

Later Mughals

Bahadur Shah He was generous, learned and pious without any bigotry. He assumed the title of Shah Alam and was known as Shah-i-Bekhabar.

Jahandar Shah Jahandar Shah's three brothers namely Azim-us-Shan, Rafi-us-Shan and Jahan Shah lost their lives in the Battle of successions. He became king with the help of Zulfikar Khan. He abolished Jaziya.

Farrukhsiyar He had succeeded the throne with the help of Sayyid brothers Abdullah Khan and Hussain Ali. In 1717, Farrukhsiyar gave tax free trade permission to British East India Company to trade through Bengal. This Royal farman became Magna Carta for British East India Company. In 1719, Sayyid Brothers killed him with the help of Maratha Peshwa Balaji Vishwanath.

Mohammed Shah Nadir Shah invaded India in 1738-39. Nadir Shah defeated him in the Battle of Karnal (1739) and took away peacock throne and Kohinoor diamond. He was the most pleasure loving ruler of loose morals and therefore, called Mohammed Shah Rangeela.

Ahmed Shah Mohammed Shah was succeeded by his only son Ahmed Shah, born through a dancing girl whom the emperor had married. During this period, Safdarjung the nawab of Awadh was the Wazir of the empire. During Ahmed Shah's reign Ahmed Shah Abdali invaded India twice in 1749 and 1752, when he marched upto Delhi.

Alamgir II After the de-thronement of Ahmed Shah, Aziz-ud-din a grandson of Jahandar Shah was placed on the throne with the title Alamgir II.

Shah Alam II Shah Alam II joined hands with Mir Qasim of Bengal and Shuja-ud-Daula of Awadh in the Battle of Buxar against the British in 1764. They were defeated.

Akbar II He gave the title of Raja to Ram Mohan Roy. He started the Hindu-Muslim unity festival Phool-Walon-Ki-Sair.

Bahadur Shah II During the revolt of 1857, he was proclaimed the emperor by the rebels. He was confined by the British to the Red Fort.

Mughal Administration

- Babur and Humayun had a Prime Minister known as Vakil. After Bairam Khan's fall all important departments of finance were taken away from the Vakil.
- Wazir or Diwan was the head of the revenue department.
- Mir Bakshi Military department.
- Mir Saman Held independent charge of the household department and the Karkhanas.
- Chief Qazi Judicial department.
- Sadr-us-Sadr Charitable and religious endowments.
- Mustaufi Auditor-General.
- Amil Judicial officer in civil court.
- Kanungo Head accountant.
- Lambardar Head of village.
- Patwari Accountant of village.

- Sipah Salar Commander of the force.
- Kotwal was primarily the chief of the city police.
- The Mansabdari system introduced by Akbar was a unique feature of the administrative system of the Mughal empire.
- In Akbar's reign the empire was divided into 15 Subas.
- The territory of the empire was divided into Khalisa, Jagirs and Inam.
- Zabti system was based on the measurement and assessment of land.
- During Mughals Tins-i-Kamil refers to cash crop and earning from cash crop.

Revenue System

- Land was measured using the Sikandari-gaz one-third of the average produce was fixed as tax.
- The peasant was given a Patta and a Qabuliyat, which fixed the peasants rights and taxes. Zamindars were removed and taxes were directly collected.

THE AFGHAN INTERLUDE

Sher Shah Suri

- He founded second Afghan dynasty (1st Lodhi dynasty). Sher Shah's original name was Farid. In AD 1522, Farid took service under Babur Khan Lohani (Governor of Bihar) ruler in Bihar.
- Sher Shah was an Afghan, who ruled Agra and Delhi. Sher Shah was particularly perturbed by activities of Raja Maldev of Marwar. Sher Shah got better of him in the Battle of Sammel in 1544. Sher Shah divided his empire into 47 Sarkars. Each sarkar was divided into smaller units called parganas. Sher Shah died in 1545 in an explosion during his conquest of Kalinjar fort.

- A civilian was to be head of entire province and was given a small army. In the field of central administration Sher Shah followed the Sultanate pattern.

There were four main central departments, which were as follow

- Diwan-i-Wijarat This department was concerned with financial matter.
- Diwan-i-Ariz Headed by Ariz-i-mumalik. It was a military department.
- Diwan-i-Insha Working as a secretariat.
- Diwan-i-Rasalat Headed by Sadar, this department dealt with foreign affair matter. Diwan-i-Kaza headed by Qazi. The Qazi looked after the judicial administration.

There were two important officials at the Sarkar level, which were as follow

- Shiqdari-i-Shiqadaran* to maintain law and order.
 - Munshif-i-Munshifan* to supervise the revenue collection.
- Sher Shah is known for the construction of the Grand Trunk Road, that stretched from the river Indus in the West to Sonargaon in Bengal in East.
 - Sarais (rest house) were built on roads. Markets developed around these and some of them were even used for new service as Dak-Chowki.
 - He introduced coins of unalloyed gold, silver and copper of fixed standards. The silver 'Rupaya' and the copper 'Dam' were also available.
 - He built a tomb at Sasaram (Bihar) for himself which is a masterpiece of architecture.
 - He built a new city on the bank of Yamuna river (present day Purana Qila).
 - Abbas Khan Sarwani was the historian in the court of Sher Shah who wrote (The Tarikh-i-Sher Shahi).