PART III MODERN INDIA

ADVENT OF THE EUROPEANS IN INDIA

In the AD 17th-18th centuries India became a centre of attraction for many European nations, who were inspired by the new spirit of adventure and discovery. Following is the order in which Europeans came to India

The Portuguese

- Vasco da Gama was sent in 1498 from Lisbon to find the direct sea-route from Europe to India. Francisco Almeida was the first Governor of Portuguese in India (1505-09). He introduced 'The Policy of Blue Water'. Albuquerque, the next Governor, built a great territorial power in India.
- They established trading settlements at Calicut, Cochin and Cannanore. Cochin was the early capital of the Portuguese in India. The Portuguese maritime empire acquired the name of Estado da India which intended to monopolise the pepper and spice trade of the East.
- The Portuguese were able to establish their settlements near the sea in Diu, Daman, Salsette, Bassein, Chaul and Bombay on the Western coast and San Thome near Madras and Hooghly in Bengal.

Dutch

- In 1602, the Dutch East India Company was formed by the Dutch Parliament through a charter which gave them powers to fight wars.
- The Dutch gradually set-up factories at Masulipatnam, Pulicat, Surat, Bimilipatnam, Karikal, Chinsura, Kasimbazar, Boranagore, Patna, Balasore, Nagapatnam and Cochin. In 18th century, Dutch power in India began to decline and finally, collapsed with their defeat by English in the Battle of Bedara in 1759.

English

- English East India Company was founded in AD 1600 by the merchants of London, for trade with India. It was chartered on 31st December, 1600 by Queen Elizabeth and granted the monopoly of Eastern trade.
- Jahangir permitted the East India Company to establish factories at several places in the empire. Gradually, the company established factories at Agra, Ahmedabad, Baroda, Broach, Bombay, Surat, Madras, Masulipatnam and different parts of Orissa, Bihar, Bengal.
- The Island of Bombay was acquired by the East India Company from the British Government in 1668 and was immediately fortified. The first factory of English was established at Surat (1608).

Danes

Danes East India Company was founded in AD 1616. They established their settlement at Bengal (Serampur), Tranqueber (Tamil Nadu). They were forced to sell their settlements to the British in 1854.

French

- 'Compagnie des Indes Orientales' popularly known as the French East India Company was formed by Colbert, under state patronage in AD 1664.
- In AD 1667, an expedition was sent under Francois Caron, who established the first French factory India at Surat. In AD 1669, Marcara founded another French factory at Masulipatam by securing patent from the Sultan of Golconda.
- In July 1672, French squadron under De La Haye occupied San Thome near Madras.
- In 1673, Francois Martin, director of the Masulipatam factory, obtained from Sher Khan Lodi, Governor of Valikondapuram, a site for a factory, which later developed into Pondicherry and its first governor was Francois Martin.
- In Bengal, the French laid the foundation of their famous settlement of Chandranagar in AD 1690 on a site granted to them by Shaista Khan.

The European Commerce

India had maintained its trade relations with the foreign merchants even during the earlier centuries. There was a great difference between the foreign merchants who had earlier settled in and conducted brisk trade from India and the Europeans who came to India in the 16th and 17th centuries.
