LAND REVENUE SYSTEM

Permanent Settlement

- Introduced in Bengal, Bihar-Orissa, districts of Banaras and Northern districts of Madras by Lord Cornwallis in 1793. Sir John Shore planned this settlement.
- It declared zamindars as the owners of the land. Hence, they could keep 1/11th of the revenue collected to themselves while the British got a fixed share of 10/11th of the revenue collected. The zamindars were free to fix the rate. Assured of their ownership, many zamindars stayed in towns and exploited their tenants.
- The zamindars collected the rents of land through different intermediate collectors. As a result of such practice there had been creation of multi-level ranks of collector under the zamindar.

Ryotwari Settlement

- It was introduced in Bombay, Madras and Assam. Munro and Charles Reed recommended it. In this system, the direct settlement was made between the Government and the Ryots. The revenue was based on the basis of the quality of the soil and the nature of the crop.
- The revenue was fixed for a period not exceeding 30 years. It was based on the Scientific Rent Theory of Ricardo. The position of the cultivator became more secure.

Mahalwari System

- It was introduced in the area of Ganga valley NWFP, parts of Central India and Punjab. Revenue settlement was to be made by village or estates with landlords.
- In this system, a settlement was made with the village which maintained a form of common ownership known as Bhai Chara or with Mahals, which were group of villages. Revenue was periodically revised.

Taluqdari System

- The Mahalwari system did not cover the whole of the Uttar Pradesh. In the district of Oudh, there existed another system known as Taluqdari system. Under it a number of villages were put under the Taluqdari system. The government entered into an agreement with the Taluqdar for a period of 30 years.
- The Taluqdar collected the stipulated revenues from different villages put under his charge and deposited them with the government, after deducting the cost of collection of the revenues and his own remuneration for the arduous work.
- Unlike the Bengal Zamindars the Oudh Taluqdars had no real rights over the lands under their charge. Moreover, they worked as revenue collectors for the fixed period of the settlement, and not in perpetuity.

REVOLT OF 1857

The mighty upsurge of 1857, swept over many parts of Northern and Central India like an avalanche. The British Empire in India was rattled to its foundation. It was the most significant movement of resistance against European colonial rule.

Causes of the Revolt

- Political Cause Nana Sahib was refused pension as he was the adopted son of Peshwa Baji Rao-II. He later led the revolt from Kanpur.
- Awadh (Lucknow) was annexed in 1856, on charge of maladministration and Jhansi was annexed owing to Doctrine of Lapse.
- Military Discrimination Indian soldiers were paid low salaries, they could not rise above the rank of Subedar and were racially insulted.
- Religious Discrimination The social reforms by British was against the people's will (widow remarriage, abolition of sati, school for girls, Christian missionaries etc). Soldiers were asked to use the Enfield Rifles with greased (by pork or beef) cartridges.
- Economic Grievances Heavy taxations, discriminatory tariff policy; destruction of traditional handicrafts that hit peasants, artisans and small zamindars.
- William Taylor and Edgre suppressed the revolt at Arrah. Tantia Tope was betrayed by a friend. He was captured and executed on 15th April, 1859.

Causes Behind the Failure of the Revolt

- Lack of unity and poor organisation of the revolt. All the classes of the society were not effected or participated in the revolt. Lack of common motive for participating in the revolt.
- Some of the rulers like Scindhias, Nizam and Holkars helped Britishers in repressing the revolt. The military equipment of rebels was inferior.

Outbreak of the Revolt

- Bengal Resentment in 19 native infantry of Behrampur, which refused to use the newly introduced Enfield Rifle.
- Mangal Pandey 34th native infantry fired at the sergeant major of his regiment. Known as a part of Mutiny of Barrackpur.
- Where the rulers were loyal to the British, the soldiers revolted, as in Gwalior and Indore. In some places, people revolted before the sepoys.
- In the beginning, the rebels were successful. Europeans were killed, police stations and law courts were attacked and revenue records were destroyed. But, the revolt was soon suppressed.

Suppression of the Revolt

- John Lawrence remarked, "Had a single leader of ability arisen among them we must have been lost beyond redemption." Delhi was recaptured on 20th September, 1857 by John Nicholson and Bahadur Shah II was deported to Rangoon, where he died in 1862. His sons were shot dead at Delhi.
- Jhansi was recaptured by Hugh Rose on 17th June, 1858. Rani Lakshmi Bai died in the battle field. Kanpur was recaptured on 6th December, 1857 by Colin Campbell. Lucknow was recaptured on 21st March, 1858 by Colin Campbell, Havelock and Outram. Nana Sahib and Hazrat Mahal both escaped to Nepal.

OTHER IMPORTANT EVENTS

- At Jhansi, Rani Laxmibai, the widow queen of Raja Gangadhar Rao, the last Maratha ruler of Jhansi, led the rebellion.
- In Bihar, Kunwar Singh of Arrah, raised the banner of rebellion, which soon spread to many parts of Bihar, including Danapur, Chhotanagpur, Ranchi, Palamau etc. The tribals of the region also joined the rebellion. Kunwar Singh overthrew the British authority in Shahabad and established his own government. He marched to Kalpi to help Nana Sahib for a joint attack on Kanpur.
- Prince Firoz Shah raised the banner of revolt at Mandor (Madhya Pradesh) and kept the British forces engaged in Central India. Driven out of central provinces, he campaigned in Ruhelkhand and Awadh. He also joined the forces of Tantia Tope in Rajputana.
- Khan Bahadur Khan raised the banner of revolt in Ruhelkhand with epicenter at Bareilly. He proclaimed himself the Nawab Nazim.

Social and Cultural Uprisings

Brahmo Samaj

- Brahmo Samaj was founded by Raja Rammohan Roy in 1828 at Calcutta.
- Roy believed in the modern scientific approach and principles of human dignity and social equality. He put his faith in monotheism.
- He wrote the Gift to Monotheists (1809) and translated it into Bengali the Vedas and five Upanishads to prove his conviction to that ancient Hindu text.
- In 1814, he set-up Atmiya Sabha in Calcutta to campaign against idolatry, caste rigidities, meaningless rituals and other social evils.
- In 1825, he established a Vedanta college where courses in both Indian learning and Western social and physical science were offered.
- Roy was a gifted linguist. He knew more than a dozen language including Sanskrit, Persian, Arabic, English, French, Latin, Greek and Hebrew. He proposed English system of education.

Prarthana Samaj

- Mahadev Gobind Ranade along with Dr Atmaram Pandurang reorganised Paramhansa Sabha under the guidance of Keshab Chandra Sen and founded Prarthana Samaj in 1867. It was primarily a Social Reform and Social Work Movement.
- Beyond the religious concerns, the primary focus of the Prarthana Samaj was to improve the condition of women and depressed classes. The samajist demanded to end the caste system, abolish the child marriages and infanticide, educate the women and remarriage of widows.

- A paper named Subodh Patrika was started in order to spread the teaching of the society. Some prominent Prarthana Samajist like Ramkrishna Gopal Bhandarkar, Narayan Ganesh Chandavarkar, Gopal Ganesh Agarkar, KT Telang etc contributed for overall development of the society.

Arya Samaj

Arya Samaj founded by Dayanand Saraswati or Mulshankar (1824-83).

- The first Arya Samaj unit was formally set up by him at Bombay in 1875 and later the headquarter of the Samaj was established at Lahore.
- Dayanand's views were published in the famous work of Satyarth Prakash (The True Exposition). He gave slogan "Go Back to the Vedas". He disregarded Puranas, idol worship, casteism and untouchability. He advocated widow remarriage.
- Arya Samaj has established a large number of educational institutions in India particularly in the North, like Kanya Gurukuls and DAV (Dayanand Anglo-Vedic) Schools and College.
- Dayanand was the first man to use the term Swaraj and recognise Hindi as the National Language of India.
- The Arya Samaj opposed all social evils of the Hindu society like sati, polygamy, child marriage, pardah, casteism etc and started the Shudhi movement.

Rama Krishna Mission

- The first Rama Krishna Math was established by the disciple of Rama Krishna, Swami Vivekananda at Baranagar in 1897.
- Vivekananda went to America in 1893 and attended the World Parliament of Religious Conference at Chicago.
- Vivekananda revived Hindu Spiritualism and thus, established its superiority over Islam and Christianity. Irish woman Margaret Nobel (known as sister Nivedita) popularised the mission.

- During the late 1820 and early 1830 there emerged a radical intellectual trend among the youth in Bengal, which came to be known as the 'Young Bengal Movement'.
- Founded by Henry Vivian Derozio, who taught in Hindu College Calcutta from 1826 to 1831. Derozio is considered as the first nationalist poet of Modern India.
- He also edited Hesperus and Calcutta Literary Gazette. He urged the students to live and die for truth. Derozio also supported women rights and education.
- The movement was too radical, therefore it could not survive for long.

Satya Shodhak Samaj

- Satya Shodhak Samaj (Truth Seeker's Society) was founded by Jyotiba Phule in 1873. He belonged to the Mali (gardener) community and organised a powerful movement against upper caste domination and Brahminical supremacy.
- Phule's works 'Sarvajanik Satyadharma' and 'Gulam Giri' became sources of inspiration for the common masses.
- Phule opened with the help of his wife, a girls school at Poona and was a pioneer of widow remarriage movement in Maharashtra.

✓ JAJMANI SYSTEM

- This system was an Indian social caste system and was an interaction between upper castes and lower castes. It was an economic system where lower castes performed various functions for upper castes.
- The terminology of Jajmani system was introduced by William Wiser. He found in his study on a village in Uttar Pradesh, that how different castes interacted with one another in the production and exchange of goods and services.
- The system is based on the agricultural system of production and distribution of goods and services.

The Theosophical Movement

- The Theosophical Society was founded by Madame Blavatsky and Col. Olcott in New York in 1875.
- The founders arrived in India in January 1882 and established the headquarters of the society at Adyar near Madras.
- The society belief in the universal brotherhood of humanity without any discrimination, study of comparative religion, philosophy and science and the unexplained laws of nature and the powers latent in human.
- In 1888, Mrs Annie Besant joined the society in England. Her membership provided an asset of greatest values to the society.
- Annie Besant (1847-1933) became its President after the death of Olcott in 1907. She laid the foundation of the Central Hindu College in Banaras in 1898, which became BHU in 1916.

NATIONAL MOVEMENTS

Indigo Revolt (AD 1859-60)

- The European planters used totally arbitrary and ruthless methods to force peasants to grow the unremunerative Indigo crop on a part of their land in Eastern India.
- In 1860, the terribly oppressed indigo peasants launched 'non-cultivation of indigo' movements. Beginning with the Ryots of Govindpur village in Nadia district (Bengal) the Indigo strikes rapidly spread to other areas by the spring of 1860.
- Important role was played by Harish Chandra Mukherji, editor of Hindu Patriot. 'Deen Bandhu Mitra's' play Neel Darpan was based on this. Michel Madhusudan Dutta eminent Bengali poet cum play-writer, translated Neel Darpan into English.
- The government appointed an Indigo Commission in 1860. Indigo riots took place in 1867-68 in Champaran (Bihar).

The Indian National Congress

- Founded in 1885 by Allan Octavian Hume (AO Hume) a retired British member of Indian Civil Service. It is thought, his main purpose was to encourage the foundation of Congress to provide a 'safety valve' or 'safety outlet' to growing discontent among the educated Indians.
- The first session of the Indian National Congress was held on 28th December, 1885. Dadabhai Naoroji changed the name of the organisation to Indian National Congress (INC). Wyomesh Chandra Banerjee a leading lawyer of Calcutta was elected its President. Its session was held in Bombay under WC Banerjee in 1885 (72 delegates attended it).
- In 1890, Kadambini Ganguly, the first woman graduate of Calcutta university, addressed the Congress session. The most outstanding representative of this school was Bal Gangadhar Tilak later popularly known as Lokamanya Tilak. He was born in 1856. The most outstanding extremist leaders were Bipin Chandra Pal, Aurobindo Ghosh and Lala Lajpat Rai.

The Partition of Bengal

- On 20th July, 1905 Lord Curzon issued an order to divide the province of Bengal into two parts. It was done with a partial motive to set-up a communal gulf between Hindus and Muslims.
- The Anti-Partition Movement was started by most prominent leaders like Surendranath Banerjee and Krishna Kumar Mitra. There were cries of 'Bande Mataram' which became a national song of Bengal.
- Rabindranath Tagore composed the national song 'Amar Sonar Bangla' for the occasion which was sung by huge crowd parading the streets. This song was adopted as national anthem by Bangladesh in 1971 after liberation.
- The ceremony of Raksha Bandhan was observed on 16th October, 1905. Hindu and Muslim tied 'rakhi' in one another's wrists as a symbol of the unbreakable unity.

Swadeshi Movement

- The leader of Bengal felt that mere demonstrations, public meetings and resolutions were not enough and something more concrete was needed and the answer felt was Swadeshi and Boycott. People burnt foreign clothes and foreign goods.
- The leaders of Bengal took up the work of national education in right earnest. National educational institutions were opened by them and literary, technical and physical education was given there.
- On 15th August, 1906 a national council of education was set-up and Aurobindo Ghosh was appointed as the first Principal of the National College.

- An important aspect of the Swadeshi Movement was emphasis placed on self-reliance. At the Calcutta session the Congress decided to boycott British goods on 7th August, 1905.
- Lala Lajpat Rai, BG Tilak and Bipin Chandra Pal (Lal, Bal and Pal) and Aurobindo Ghosh played important role in Swadeshi Movement.

Muslim League (1906)

In 1906, the All India Muslim League was founded under the leadership of Agha Khan, Nawab Salim-ul-lah of Dacca and Nawab Mohsin-ul-Mulk. The League supported separate electorate for the Muslim community and opposed the Nationalist moves of the Congress. In return, the British declared that they would protect the 'special interest of the Muslims'.

The Surat Split or Surat Session of INC (1907)

- The Indian National Congress (INC) split in two groups, the moderate and extremist groups at the Surat session in 1907. Extremists were led by Lal Lajpat Rai, BG Tilak and Bipin Chandra Pal and the moderates by Gopal Krishna Gokhale.
- The government launched a massive attack on the extremists (between 1907 and 1911) by suppressing their newspaper (Incitement to offences) and their leaders.

The Ghadar Party Movement (1913)

- Taraknath Das, Sohan Singh Bhakana and Lala Hardayal founded the Ghadar Party Movement.
- In November, 1913, the Hind Association of America was founded by Sohan Singh Bhakana. It decided to publish a weekly paper Ghadar or Hindustan Ghadar in commemoration with the Revolt of 1857.
- The organisation headquarter was at San Francisco. Lal Hardayal, Bhai Parmanand and Ram Chandar were leading figures of the Ghadar Party Movement.
- Ghadar party planned to initiate an armed revolt in India, in 1915. They planned to start revolt in Punjab firstly, then followed by Bengal and rest of India. India units as far as Singapore were planned to participate in the revolt.
- British intelligence infiltrated the Ghadarite movement and crushed the plan before started.

Champaran Satyagraha (1917)

- The major problem at Champaran in Bihar was of the Indigo planters. The European planters forced the peasant to grow indigo on 3/20th of the total land area (tin katie system). Peasants were also forced to sell their produce at the prices fixed by the Europeans. When the German synthetic dyes replaced indigo, the planters demanded high rents and illegal dues from the peasants in order to maximise their profit.
